"Buying small parcels of village level wines from great producers in good vintage can be a way of getting good returns and easy to sell as the wine trade has a high demand for these wines once they have reached maturity"

"Grand cru in burgundy will always give better returns especially when investing in high quality producers who haven't yet shot to fame..."

"Grand cru wines from high quality established producers will create great returns. Availability can be a problem as it is linked with how many other wines are bought from the same producers. Buying as a small group of individuals can help overcome that situation."
